

The Fire Information Group (UK), commonly known as FIGUK, is an information exchange co-operative in the fire, loss prevention and resilience fields.

FIGUK membership comprises information professionals, librarians, researchers, firefighters, fire and rescue services, forensic and fire investigators, fire information publishers and others, from a range of well respected organisations.

For an up-to-date Directory of Members see www.figuk.org.uk

Members benefit by being able to identify specific areas of expertise, industry contacts, printed and electronic published information and help in lobbying for better information provision in this important sector.

FIGUK was established in 1988. Members meet every six months to discuss new developments in members' areas of expertise. More general topics such as copyright issues and electronic forms of information are also discussed. A newsletter and minutes are produced after each meeting.

International Links

FIGUK has links with inFIRE (international network of Fire Information and Reference Exchange) that is based in the USA and has members throughout Europe and also in Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

FIGUK web site

On the website www.figuk.org.uk you can find the Constitution, Newsletters, a Directory of Members, Minutes of previous meetings and more.